Portland Mississippi and Overlook

In a 2-mile loop starting at beautiful, blufftop Overlook Park, walk a pedestrian bridge over I-5 to the vibrant neighborhood restaurants, shops and galleries along historic N Mississippi Avenue.

Begin at Overlook Park, at N Interstate Avenue and Fremont Street. Walk across Fremont to the east side of Interstate and begin walking north on Interstate. At Overlook Boulevard is the Kaiser Town Hall, a neighborhood meeting place named for nearby Kaiser Permanente, which first came to Overlook in 1959 with the Bess Kaiser Medical Center. Continue north. At Failing is St. Stanislaus Church, the heart of Portland’s Polish community. From Interstate, turn right on Failing and cross the I-5 pedestrian bridge.

Once over the bridge, walk east on Failing two blocks to Mississippi. Turn right and shop and eat as you walk south, passing the ReBuilding Center at 3625, a project of the community-run Our United Villages. The center’s donated inventory changes hourly, recycling an estimated 10 tons per day of construction waste; it is the largest nonprofit used building materials resource in North America.
