Exhibit B to Agreement between Metro and Washington County

PRINCIPLES FOR CONCEPT PLANNING OF URBAN RESERVES

1. Special Concept Plan Area A

This area, also known as Urban Reserve Area 6B, is approximately 1,776 acres, of which approximately 892 acres are buildable and approximately 839 acres are constrained lands. Existing roads account for an additional 45 acres of non-buildable land.

Constrained lands consist of Metro's and Washington County's Goal 5 inventories, slopes over 25%, floodplains, parks, and a city-owned parcel (approximately 10 acres) adjacent to SW Kemmer Road that contains a water tank. In order to account for the above constraints, concept planning should be undertaken as a whole in order to offer appropriate protection and enhancement to the public lands and natural features that are located throughout the area. Residential density targets will be an important consideration in future planning for the area and may need to be adjusted in order to protect and enhance the integrity of existing Title 13 and Goal 5 lands.

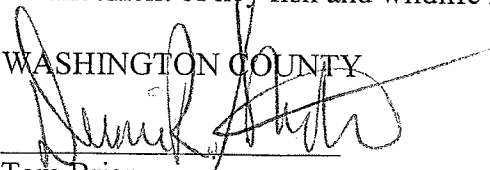

2. Special Concept Plan Area B

Undesignated lands surrounding the City of Banks and the City of North Plains provide the opportunity in the future for Washington County and each respective city to undertake Urban Reserve planning under OAR 660-021. It is the County's expectation that such planning will result in application of Urban Reserve and Rural Reserve designations in appropriate locations and quantities.

3. Special Concept Plan Area C

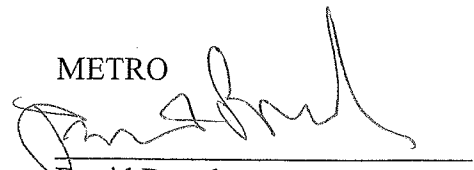

Urban Reserve Area 8C (Bethany West) is 305 acres, of which approximately 114 acres are constrained lands such as wetlands and floodplains. This Urban Reserve area provides vital habitat linkage for sensitive species along a riparian corridor. During concept planning, subsequent comprehensive planning and development review and implementation for the entire special concept plan area, the "Integrating Habitats" approach championed by Metro's Nature in Neighborhoods program shall be utilized. The "Integrating Habitats" approach is intended to provide appropriate protection and enhancement of natural areas through the use of progressive and environmentally sensitive development practices. This approach combines and balances ecological stewardship and economic enterprise with protection of water quality and restoration and enhancement of key fish and wildlife habitats.
