MAIN STREETS

STATION COMMUNITIES

CORRIDORS

CENTRAL CITY CENTER

NEIGHBORHOODS

PARKS AND NATURAL AREAS

EMPLOYMENT & INDUSTRIAL LANDS

CENTERS

The 2040 Growth Concept is based on a series of land use components, called 2040 land use design types, that are the building blocks for managing growth. The land use design types are identified as centers, station communities, corridors, main streets, neighborhoods, employment and industrial lands, and parks and natural areas. Regional street design classifications correspond to the different land use design types and help implement the 2040 Growth Concept.